

INSPECTION REPORT

Today, South Korea is densely populated and its economy is growing as it is known for producing high-tech industrial goods.

The following is a list of ten things to know about the country of South Korea:

- 1) South Korea's population as of July 2009 was 48,508,972. Its capital, Seoul, is one of its largest cities with a population of over ten million.
- 2) The official language of South Korea is Korean but English is taught widely in the country's schools. In addition, Japanese is common in South Korea.
- 3) The population of South Korea is composed of 99.9% Korean but 0.1% the population is Chinese.
- 4) The dominant religious groups in South Korea are Christian and Buddhist, however a large percent of South Koreans claim no religious preference.
- 5) South Korea's government is a republic with a single legislative body which is comprised of the National Assembly or Kukhoe. The executive branch is made up of chief of state who is the country's president and a head of government who is the prime minister.
- 6) Most of South Korea's topography is mountainous with its highest point being Halla-san at 6,398 feet (1,950 m). Halla-san is an extinct volcano.
- 7) Around two-thirds of the land in South Korea is forested. This includes the mainland and some of the more than 3,000 small islands that are located on the country's southern and western coast8) The climate of South Korea is temperate with cold winters and hot, wet summers. The average January temperature for Seoul, South Korea's capital city, is 28°F (-2.5°C) while the average August high temperature is 85°F (29.5°C).

9) South Korea's economy is high-tech and industrialized. Its main industries include electronics, telecommunications, auto production, steel, shipbuilding and chemical production. Some of South Korea's largest companies include Hyundai, LG and Samsung.

10) In 2004, South Korea opened a high speed rail line called Korea Train Express (KTX) which was based on the French TGV. The KTX runs from Seoul to Pusan and Seoul to Mokpo and transports over 100,000 people daily.
